1. Registering for Retigo COMBIONLINE®

To take full advantage of the Retigo Combionline® system, you first have to register and create a user account at www.combionline.com.
After filling out and submitting the form, you will receive a confirmation e-mail to verify the e-mail address you have entered. Your registration is not complete until you have confirmed your e-mail address.

2. Activating Retigo COMBIONLINE® on your appliance

It is assumed that your appliance is connected to the Internet. If the combi oven is not connected to the Internet, contact your service partner.

Check the IP address settings in the service menu:
Settings / Service / Parameters / Network access / Network connection / IP address settings

The network interface is factory set to the default setting of „DHCP", which is appropriate for most computer networks. It is necessary to set the network interface manually for the static IP address option. In this case, get the relevant network parameters from the administrator of the given computer network.

Activating Retigo Combionline®

1. Go to Settings
2. Choose User settings
3. Enter the user code
4. Choose Combionline
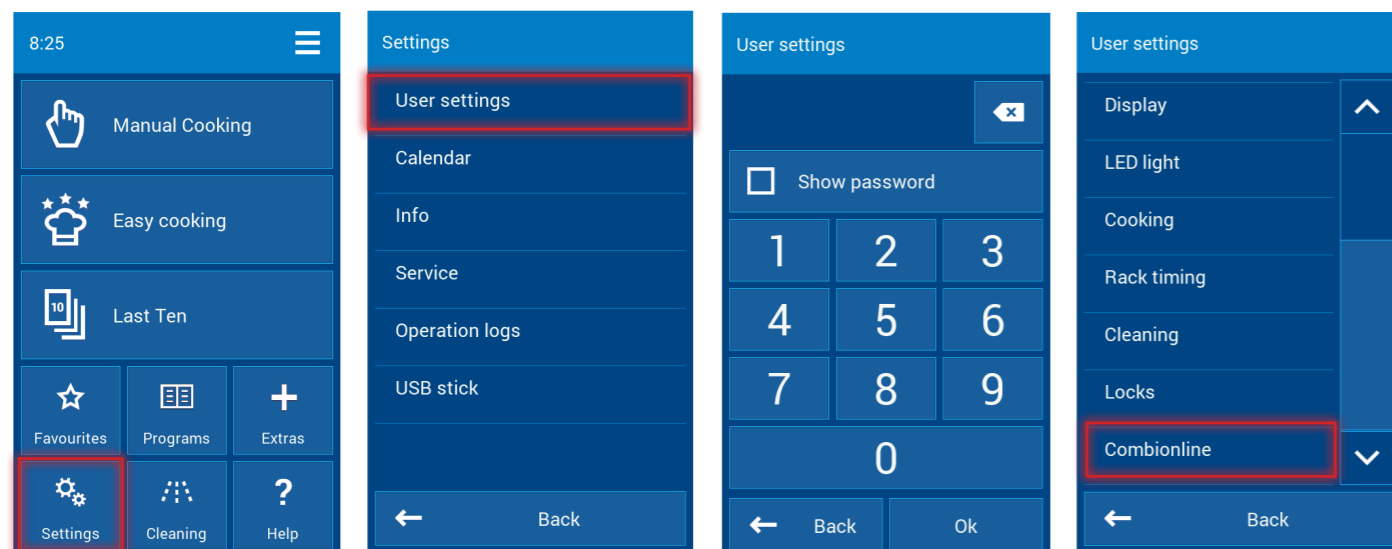

5. Tick Enable
6. ATTENTION! On older appliances, a display message may pop up about the need to enter a verification code — in this case, continue according to chapter 4.
7. Select user access
8. Continue to Registration e-mail
9. Enter the e-mail address that you used when registering for the Retigo Combionline® system and press OK.
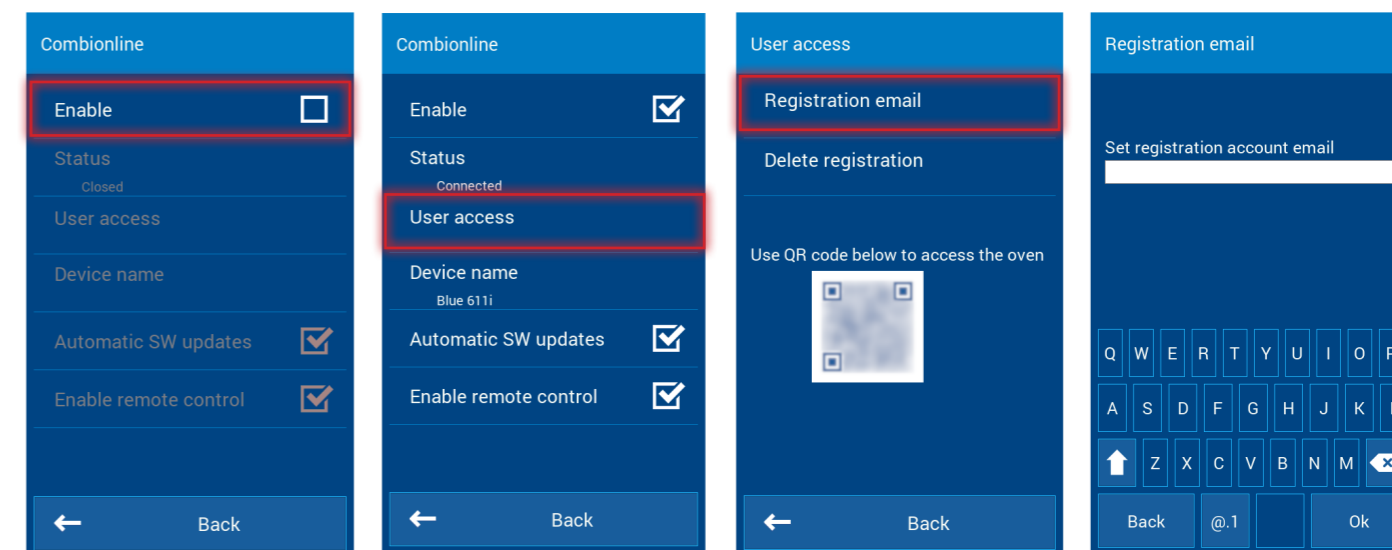

If registration was successful, the display will show this message:
Your appliance has been successfully registered to your user account.

In the Combionline menu, the Status item changes to Connected.

If you enter the wrong e-mail address or one that has not been registered to the Retigo Combionline® system, the screen shows the following alert:
Registration e-mail does not exist. Create your user account at combionline.com and try again.

3. Steps for connecting

Name of connected appliance

In the Name of appliance menu, the connected appliance can be given any name you wish. After you log into the Retigo Combionline® system, you'll see the appliance with the name you gave it. Renaming the appliance is especially a good idea when you connect several appliances at the same time. It lets you quickly distinguish between them.

After login to the Retigo Combionline® system, the newly registered appliance appears in the My appliances section. The name appears next to the combi oven icon in the Name column.
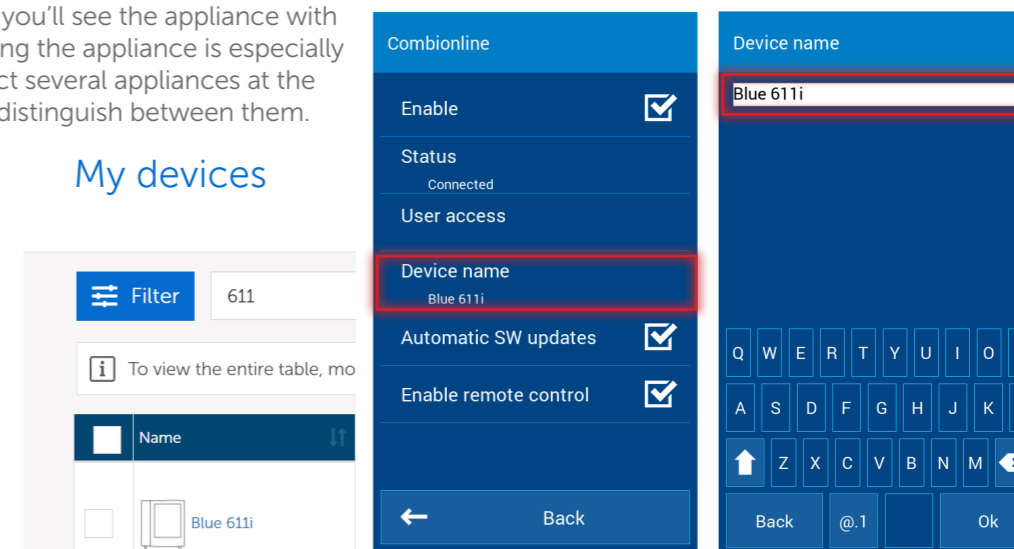

Automatic software update

When this choice is active, if a new official software version comes out, the appliance automatically downloads the new version to memory and prompts the user to install it. The user can choose whether to install the new software version immediately or later. If you postpone, a notification will appear next time you turn on the appliance.

Enabling remote control

Activating this option allows remote control of the appliance using the display in the Retigo Combionline® system environment. This way, the appliance can be controlled from a mobile phone, tablet or PC. If this option is not active, the appliance's display can be viewed remotely but not controlled.
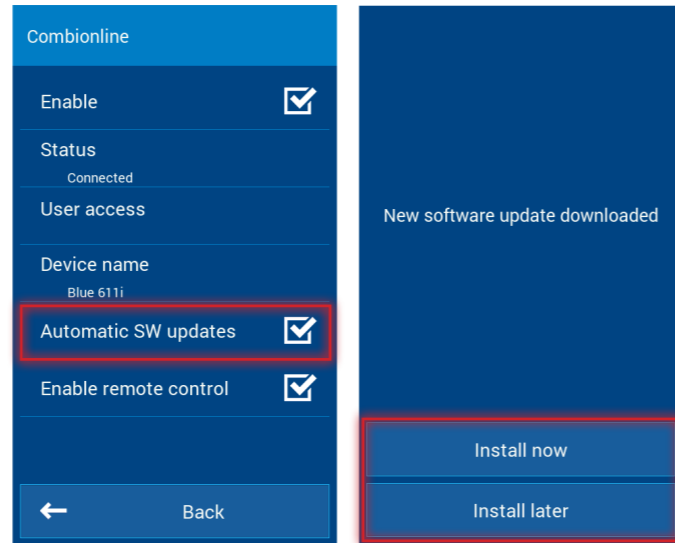

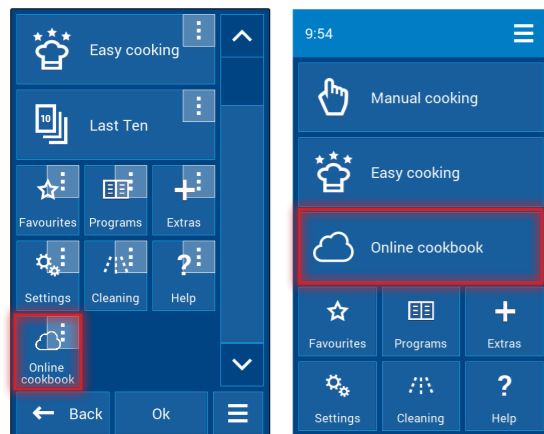

Adding on online cookbook to the screen

Clicking on the hamburger menu button takes you to profile management. Edit the current profile and add the online cookbook button.
Example: To keep the screen compact, the LAST 10 button has been replaced with the online cookbook button.
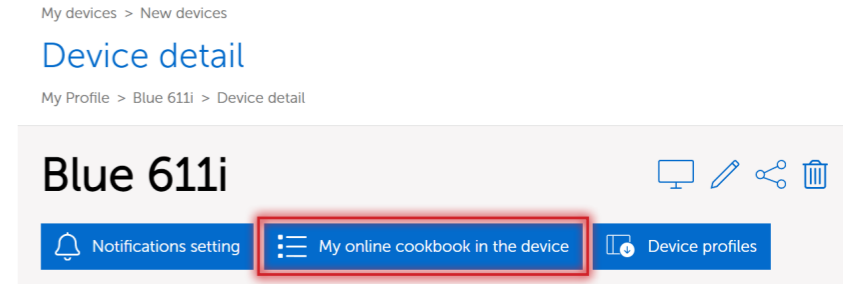

All recipes sent from Retigo Combionline® are saved to the online cookbook.

Notice: Please note that programs uploaded through Retigo Combionline® will always be uploaded to the root folder of the online cookbook. This is because if you send the program to multiple appliances at the same time, the system cannot know all the folders (created by the user), which may differ on each appliance.

Managing uploaded recipes

Recipes uploaded to the appliance can be found in Retigo Combionline® under the button My online cookbook in the appliance, where you can access the appliance's details.

4. Procedure for older appliances without a verification code

If you decide to activate Retigo Combionline® on older appliances where the verification code has not yet been indicated on the label and has not been entered in the service menu, then after activating the Combionline option, a message will appear on the display about the need to enter the verification code.

In that situation, you need to contact the manufacturer and provide the appliance's serial number needed to activate Retigo Combionline®. Based on the appliance's serial number, the manufacturer will generate a new verification code and send it immediately.

Go to the Settings / Service / Parameters / Verification code, and enter the code manually.

On appliances made starting in October 2020, the verification code is shown on the plate:
